The NSS Council of Fr. Conceicao Rodrigues College of Engineering, in collaboration with Ms. Wrutuja Soni, a distinguished Chartered Accountant and LLB, organized a comprehensive Tax Awareness Seminar. This initiative aimed to provide valuable insights into taxation, government schemes, and investment opportunities, addressing the absence of dedicated taxation courses in our engineering curriculum. The seminar sought to equip students with essential knowledge in financial matters, laying the foundation for their holistic development.

The core focus of the seminar was to demystify taxation, providing participants with a comprehensive understanding of current tax slabs, deductions, and exemptions. Practical examples and case studies, guided by the expert's expertise, illustrated the impact of taxation on personal finances. The seminar fostered active participation through an engaging format, involving students in discussions and real-life scenarios, ensuring they not only grasped theoretical concepts but also gained practical insights into the world of taxation. Recognizing the unique academic focus of engineering students, the session addressed the need for financial literacy among them, making complex tax-related information accessible and relevant. In collaboration with the expert, the seminar shed light on various government schemes available for individuals, emphasizing their significance for financial planning. Participants were informed about schemes designed to promote savings, investments, and social security, enabling them to make informed decisions about their financial future. Additionally, the seminar explored non-government investment options, introducing attendees to a spectrum of investment avenues and fostering an understanding of risk and return dynamics. This knowledge empowers students to make informed investment choices aligning with their financial goals. The Tax Awareness Seminar, guided by her expertise, proved highly beneficial for participants, offering a holistic understanding of taxation and financial planning. Feedback indicated a notable increase in awareness and confidence regarding financial matters.

The Tax awareness seminar organized by the NSS Council of Fr. Conceicao Rodrigues College of Engineering, in collaboration with Ms. Wrutuja Soni, was a resounding success. Building on this success, the NSS Council plans to organize follow-up sessions and workshops, collaborating with financial experts to provide ongoing support in enhancing financial literacy among the student community.
